Primary Interest Continues High; Some Upsets Noted

Georgia voters armed with new power poured into the polls Wednesday to pick a governor and candidates for one U.S. Senate and 10 House seats in the wake of a red-hot New Hampshire primary that upset two favorites.

Rep. Perkins Bass edged Doloris Bridges by 1,745 votes in a down-to-the-wire finish for New Hampshire's GOP nomination for the remaining four years of the late Sen. Styles Bridges' term. The senator was Mrs. Bridges' husband.

And big John Pillsbury, 44, a 6-foot-3, 225-pounder, swamped Gov. Wesley Powell's bid for a third consecutive term under an avalanche of votes. The former utilities firm executive and one-time Bridges' staff member topped Powell by 13,582 in the GOP balloting. The final count was 55,683 to 42,101.

These two races were the most closely watched nationally of primaries in nine states Tuesday to pick party choices for eight Senate, six governor and 39 House posts.

Mrs. Bridges, a staunch conservative, had campaigned vigorously against President Kennedy's foreign and domestic programs. Bass supported the administration trade program.

The closeness of the vote portended a possible contest.

Powell, a conservative who had hopes of gaining a post on the national GOP presidential ticket in 1964, was beaten by Pillsbury's middle-of-the-road campaigning.

New Hampshire's Sen. Norris Cotton also easily defeated Norman Lapage in GOP voting for the state's other Senate seat.

In Georgia, urban voters turned out early and in great numbers to ballot for the first time in 54 years on a popular basis following outlawing of a rural-favoring county unit system.

With no Republicans in the field, the Democratic nomination for governor was equivalent to election. Carl Sanders, 38, a state senator, and Marvin Griffin, 55, a former governor, were the main candidates. Both are segregationists, but Sanders is somewhat more moderate.

ARIZONA—Sen. Carl Hayden, 84, and dean of the Senate, won the Democratic Senate nomination easily over W. Lee McLane, a Phoenix attorney, Republican State Sen. Evan Mecham defeated Stephen Shadegg, former campaign manager for Barry Goldwater, for the Republican nomination. Both are conservatives.

PEN ARGYL — Disaster struck this Slate Belt town yesterday morning when a rock slide at the East Quarry of the Albion Slate Co., killed two men and injured seven other workmen.

Killed were Daniel DeLong, 61, of Pen Argyl, RD 1 and Edward Eickhoff, 31, of 248 Washington St., Bangor.

Injured and admitted to Easton Hospital were Peter Fiorot, 38, of Pen Argyl, RD 1; Donald Fenner, 30, Bangor, RD 3, and John Pekar, Johnsonville, Bangor, RD 1.

Fiorot is being treated for a possible fractured collarbone, multiple lacerations of the face and scalp and a possible concussion.

Pekar is being treated for lacerations of the right leg and scalp. Fenner's only injury announced is a fractured skull.

Those injured and treated at the scene were Michael Capone, 21, of East Bangor, with lacerations of the right hand, knee and leg; Armen DeSel, Roseto, with abrasions of the back, cuts on the left hand and shock; Kenneth Kidd, 26, of North Bangor, with lacerations to his scalp, left wrist and abrasions to his face, and Roland Weidman, Saylorsburg, RD, treated for shock.

A spokesman for the hospital listed Fiorot and Pekar as satisfactory. Fenner underwent surgery and was listed as critical. He came out of the operating room at 6:15 p.m.

Northampton County Coroner George Kametz, of Bethlehem, said last night that the deaths will be listed as accidental.

DeLong's death was caused by a broken back, crushed skull and multiple body injuries. Eickhoff's cause of death was fractured skull, multiple body injuries and a severed left arm.

Coroner Kametz added that the men were partially buried by the slide.

A witness said, "everything on top of the quarry shook," when the rock and dirt let loose.

It was reported by David Stoddard, executive vice president of the company, that these men were the only workmen in the quarry at the time of the accident.

Dr. John Turtzo, of Pen Argyl, a deputy Northampton County coroner, arrived on the scene and pronounced the two men dead. He later administered first aid to the injured men.

A board of directors meeting of the slate company was in progress at the time of the slide.

Slate Broke Away

Witnesses said a large piece of slate broke away from the wall on the south side of the "old bottom" portion of the quarry.

A large piece broke loose about 100 feet from the surface and toppled approximately 350 feet to a ledge where the men were working. As the piece fell it shattered and sprayed the entire area below.

William Kaschier, of Bangor, RD 1, a signalman at the quarry, said the last blast at the quarry was done about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, when a split hole was blasted.

He added, "Those guys didn't have a chance. I didn't expect any to come up alive as did. I rang the bell and motioned to the men below."

A spokesman for the company said the last blasting at the quarry was done about 5:30 a.m. Wednesday, when a split hole was blasted.

feet away and had more of a chance to get away."

After the debris cleared Capone joined in efforts to haul out the dead and injured workmen.

David Stoddard, said this was the first fatal accident in the quarry in 30 years. He added that operations were closed immediately so an investigation could be started.

The investigation is being conducted by police chiefs Donald Rohn, Plainfield Township, and Leo Reinhart, Wind Gap.

Lloyd Elmes, of Pen Argyl, one of many people to visit the scene of the accident said, "This is the first fatal accident around here since April 1949. Then a man by the name of Heater was buried in a hole and never recovered."

"I remember seeing the funeral party go down in the quarry for the funeral services. Following the services the hole was closed off and the quarry stopped taking slate from the hole."

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senators demanding cost production figures from the nation's big steel firms were urged Wednesday not to insist, to provide the figures, a steel company spokesman said, would make matters worse for an industry beset by dwindling earnings because of competition.

Thomas F. Patton, president of Republic Steel, spoke for the industry before the Senate Judiciary Committee, which is considering whether to support a contempt of Congress move against executives of four firms which refused to supply the data.

He got a sympathetic response from several of the senators.

Sens. John L. McClellan, D-Ark.; Sam J. Ervin Jr., D-N.C., and James O. Eastland, D-Miss., suggested the steel industry is being singled out unfairly and questioned whether any legislative purpose could be served by producing figures which might help the steelmakers' competitors.

Other Industries

McClellan wondered whether it would not be appropriate to require the aluminum, glass, paper and other industries to submit cost data also if the government is going to get into this field.

But Sen. Estes Kefauver, D-Tenn., leading the fight to pry the figures from the steel executives, insisted they are needed in relation to various measures his Anti-trust subcommittee is considering. He said the subcommittee has submitted a list of pending bills it regards as relevant to the data it has subpoenaed.

Sen. Hugh Scott, R-Pa., said he had little faith in the subcommittee's device for keeping any one steel company's figures from being made public by pooling them in the form of averages. If the specific information is submitted, it would appear in some newspaper column within two weeks, he said.

Data Would Leak Out

Patton said regardless of the form used, he is fearful that statisticians for steel industry competitors could figure out the data for each company.

Kefauver's subcommittee voted 5-3 last week to recommend that nine executives of four firms — Bethlehem, Republic, National and Armco — be cited for contempt of Congress for refusing to show up with the figures. The executives asked to be heard by the parent Judiciary Committee.

Eight other major steel companies, including U.S. Steel, have agreed under protest to submit the data. But they have been excused from doing so until the question of compliance by the other four companies is settled.

Subpoenas for the data were issued by Kefauver's subcommittee after last April's $6-a-ton steel price increase — which later was rescinded under pressure from President Kennedy.

After hearing Patton, the committee recessed its inquiry until Friday.

Rickover Sought For High Post

WASHINGTON (AP) — One of President Kennedy's closest advisers is urging that Vice Adm. H. G. Rickover, a slashing critic of American schools, be named U.S. commissioner of education, it was learned Wednesday.

The report drew a unanimous "it couldn't happen" reaction from Rickover friend and foe alike, despite at least some indications that it really could.

A reliable source said the admiral's appointment was urged on Kennedy soon after Sterling M. McMurrin announced his resignation from the post in late July.

Although the resignation has not yet been formally accepted by the White House, McMurrin left Washington last Saturday to resume his professorial duties at the University of Utah and enroll his five children in Salt Lake City schools.

Some of the nation's top men in education have been offered the appointment and turned it down. Rickover might well walk in where other men have preferred not to tread.

Kennedy Urges Boldness, Daring In Race For Space

ST. LOUIS, Mo. (AP) — President Kennedy wound up an exhaustive two-day tour of space installations Wednesday insisting that this nation can't afford to be anything less than first in space.

Here at McDonnell Aircraft Corp., producer of space capsules, the President got another secret briefing on how this country hopes to put the first man on the moon — and bring him back.

Rarely in two days has any near-scientist had so much detailed and complicated information thrust at him in such unremitting doses.

The President finished the high-level grand course a bit groggy, but pleased.

Possibly the highlight of the trip came earlier Wednesday in Houston when he got a first-hand demonstration of how the moon trip may be made.

"We must be bold and daring and unflinching," Kennedy said.

Guided Tour

Whereupon he was taken on a guided tour by five of the nation's astronauts, who have bold, daring, and inflaming plans for getting a U.S. spaceman to the moon first.

Only by winning the space race, Kennedy contended, can this nation be sure outer space will not be filled with weapons of mass destruction.

Astronauts Virgil I. Grissom, M. Scott Carpenter, John H. Glenn Jr., Donald K. Slayton and Alan B. Shepard Jr. were Kennedy's tutors Wednesday. On Tuesday in Cape Canaveral, Fla., he was instructed by the other two, Walter M. Shriver Jr. and Leroy Gordon Cooper Jr.

After a lengthy private briefing at the Manned Spacecraft Center, Kennedy came out to look at proposed models of the strange ships designed to take a man to the moon and back again.

Inside Moon Ship

Slayton, for example, took the President inside the Apollo moon shot command ship. Even though it is huge compared with past spacecraft, Kennedy had a bit of trouble climbing in and out. Possibly he is ever mindful of his bad back.

Shepard showed the President a model of a proposed lunar landing vehicle, a strange contraption that looks a little like an old-fashioned, monstrous home pressure cooker.

Mr. DeLong was born in Bushkill Township, the son of the late Harvey and Lena Hoffman DeLong.

He attended the Reformed Church, Plainfield Township.

Mr. DeLong is survived by his widow, Mrs. Helen Shook DeLong, at home; two daughters, Mrs. Grace Handelson, East Bangor and Mrs. Edward Comp-ton, Bangor RD 1; two sons, Daniel E., Pen Argyl RD 1 and Gerald, at home; four grandchildren; four brothers, Lester, Wind Gap; Harry, Bushkill Township; Harvey, Easton, and John, Netcong, N. J.; three sisters, Mrs. Della Souder, Phillipsburg, N. J.; Mrs. Amelia Johnson, Easton, and Mrs. Ella Gower, Bethlehem.

Services will be held Saturday at 10 a.m. in the Hough Home for Funerals, Bangor, with the Rev. Lewis Ewald officiating.

Interment will be in the Plainfield Cemetery.

May Delay Action On Reserve Recall

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republican efforts to force strong action against Fidel Castro's Cuba threatened Wednesday to trigger a floor battle over President Kennedy's request for standby authority to call up 150,000 Reserves.

The President requested the authority last week so that he might act promptly while Congress is not in session to meet any sudden emergency in Cuba, or anywhere else in the world.

The Senate Armed Services Committee voted unanimous approval of the request Monday. It is set for floor action Thursday and passage had been predicted swiftly with little or no opposition.

Two Amendments

Then, in quick succession, Republican senators offered two amendments which seem certain to be fought by the administration.

Sen. Jack Miller of Iowa first offered an amendment which would direct the President to enforce the Monroe Doctrine to counter the continued buildup of Soviet power in Cuba.

As an alternative, Sen. Prescott Bush of Connecticut sponsored an amendment to express the sense of Congress that the United States has the right and obligation to end Communist domination of Cuba, with or without the cooperation of other Western Hemisphere nations.

Members of the House Foreign Affairs and Armed Services committees refused comment after a 2½-hour closed briefing session on Berlin and Cuba by Secretary of State Dean Rusk.

Rusk also declined comment. He was accompanied to the rare joint session of the two committees by defense and Central Intelligence Agency officials.

Supports President

Bush said his amendment "would give notice to the world that the Congress not only supports the President by giving him authority to call up ready Reserves, but also stands firmly behind the commander in chief in whatever actions he decides to be necessary to meet the threat to the security of the Western Hemisphere arising from the Communist takeover in Cuba."

Mr. Eickhoff was born in Forks Township, the son of Granville and Hattie Gruver Eickhoff, now of Portland.

He was a veteran of the Korean War having served with the U. S. Army.

Mr. Eickhoff was a member of Bangor Lodge 72, L.O.M.; Bangor Republican Club, Roseto Rod and Gun Club, Marconi Social Club, Jacksonian Democratic Club.

In addition to his parents he is survived by his widow, Mrs. Lynette O'Conner Eickhoff, at home; two daughters, Diana Lynne and Kathleen, both at home; two sisters, Mrs. Clarence Bensley, Fairview, Mass., and Mrs. Arlington Vrontasis, Bangor; three brothers, William, Delaware Water Gap; Eugene, Utica, N. Y.; and James, at home.

Services will be held Saturday at the Hough Home for Funerals, Bangor at 2 p.m. with the Rev. William E. Dennis, officiating.

Interment will be in the Riverview Cemetery, Portland.

Friends and relatives may call at the funeral home Friday after 7 p.m.

Slate Belt Man Killed In Rail Yard

PEN ARGYL—Clyde W. Confer, 61, of 633 George St., Pen Argyl, was killed Tuesday while working in the Tadmor yards, near Bath, of the Lehigh & New England Railroad.

According to R. J. Bartholomew, Northampton County deputy coroner, and Trooper James Horton, State Police barracks, Easton, said the accident occurred about 12:45 p.m. while he was testing air brake equipment on a string of box cars standing on a spur of the yard, when the line of cars was moved by a shift locomotive.

"Confer did not suffer any external injuries, but apparently suffered internal injuries as he was rolled several feet along the track by the undercarriage and truck of a boxcar," Bartholomew said.

An autopsy was scheduled yesterday in the Easton Hospital. A spokesman for the hospital said last night that with the large number of emergencies Wednesday they had no information on the results of the autopsy.

Railroad Launches Inquiry

In addition to the investigation of the coroner and State Police the railroad company also launched an inquiry.

Mr. Confer was born in Coplay the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Michael Confer.

He had been a resident of Pen Argyl for 18 years with prior residence in Allentown. He had been an employee of the railroad for 40 years.

Mr. Confer was a member of Faith United Church of Christ, Pen Argyl.

He and his wife, the former Lillian Derr, celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on Labor Day.

Surviving in addition to his widow are five daughters, Mrs. Armon Paolini and Mrs. Derwood Shook, both of Wind Gap; Mrs. Clifford Hughes and Mrs. Gerald Kessler, both of Pen Argyl, and Mrs. Karl Repsher, Washington, D.C.; a sister, Mrs. Warren Miller, Allentown and nine grandchildren.

Services will be held Saturday at 2 p.m. in the Swoyer Funeral Home, Pen Argyl.

Crop Production Prospects Down

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Agriculture Department reported Tuesday that crop production prospects edged down during August, reflecting soil moisture shortages in some areas.

It said the crop volume of Sept. 1 was indicated at 104 per cent of the base average compared with 105 per cent indicated a month ago. Last year's production was 106 per cent of the average and the record high was 108 per cent in 1960.

The combined production of the four feed grains declined as a reduction in corn and oat prospects more than offset increases in the other feed grains.

The month also brought a slight reduction in the indicated crop of soybeans.

However, a 3 per cent larger total grain output was forecast as prospects for rice and spring wheat improved during August.

Haverford State Hospital Opened

HAVERFORD, Pa. (AP)—The Haverford State Hospital, a $13.5 million institution equipped to take care of 650 mentally ill patients, was opened formally Wednesday.

Gov. David L. Lawrence, in a dedication speech in this Philadelphia suburb, called the hospital "a milestone in the Pennsylvania mental health program."

"It represents a new departure in institutional construction and a new horizon in the attitudes of government and citizens toward the treatment and cure of mental illness," Lawrence said.

He said the hospital—there are 21 buildings in the complex—demonstrated how Pennsylvanians have developed more enlightened understanding of mental and emotional illnesses.

"The invisible wall of indifference or antagonism that once lay between local governments and mental hospitals has been gradually broken down," he continued.

Pen Argyl Is Seeking $150,000 In Counter Suit

Macy's Shifts Top Personnel

NEW YORK (AP)—R. H. Macy & Co. has reshuffled top divisional officers, installing David L. Yunch, president of the corporation's Bamberger's New Jersey division, as president of Macy's New York.

Herbert L. Seegal was advanced a notch into the vacancy at Bamberger's vacated by Yunch. Arthur L. Manchew was shifted from president of Macy's New York to chairman and chief executive of the Bamberger division. The chairman's post has been vacant for six years. The changes are effective Oct. 1.

George St., Pen Argyl, is seeking $150,000 in damages from H. Lucas Parsons, 439 W. Pennsylvania Ave., Pen Argyl.

The suit is based on charges of fraudulent conversion which was brought by Parsons against Dally last November. When the case came to trial, last Monday, Parsons withdrew the charges and through his attorney conceded there was insufficient evidence.

The lawsuit contends that the original prosecution was brought with "malicious intent" to drag Dally into "public disrespect and shame."

Claims Setbacks

As a result of the original suit, Dally contends they caused him suffering and humiliation, put him to the expense of defending himself, and prevented him from attending to his duties as president and general superintendent of the Anthony Dally and Sons Slate Co.

A Better Approach

The bitter fight over the Administration's medicare bill — for providing medical benefits to everyone drawing social security payments, whether or not they needed or wanted them — obscured the solid achievements of the Kerr-Mills bill, enacted in 1960.

This bill provides for federal-state programs to aid elderly people who are actually needy so far as being able to pay for medical services is concerned. It places the administrable emphasis where it belongs — at the local level. It is designed to deal with the problem in the most effective and economical manner, and to do that in a way which will prevent bureaucratic domination of medical practice and a breakdown in the traditional doctor-patient relationship.

But the medicare supporters have given Kerr-Mills the deep-freeze treatment. So it's time to look at the record.

In the brief period of time since its enactment, 28 states and three territories have adopted the medical assistance for the aged provision it contains, and 24 of these are also using the expanded old age assistance benefits it offers. Fourteen other states, and the District of Columbia, are using old-age assistance benefits alone. Only eight of the 50 states are not yet using any provision of the law. It is obvious that the states are implementing it according to their particular needs.

No one claims that Kerr-Mills is perfect. It is ploughing new ground, and experience will tell where amendment and liberalization of its provisions are required. But it has made a start—a big start—toward the solution of a vexing problem.

Opinions Of Other Editors

Democracy In Action

Walking along a street in Scranton the other day, Mrs. William Scranton, wife of the Pennsylvania Republican gubernatorial candidate, "bumped" into the Democratic candidate for Governor, Richardson Dilworth, and his wife and party, who were campaigning in that city.

Though it was just a coincidence, Mr. and Mrs. Dilworth and Mrs. Scranton, all smiling pleasantly, stood for some minutes engrossed in everyday conversation and well-wishing before continuing on their various ways. Anyone who noticed the photo of their chance meeting in the newspapers received, better than we can describe here, another lesson in democracy.

Political infighting is just beginning. The campaign charges and counter-charges will become more and more heated as General Election Day nears. But we should all remember that political contests like other contests in this State and throughout the Nation, are contests, not dogfights, and we, the electorate, ought to act intelligently; act with thought for others—not like dumb animals.

We do not mean by this that there should not be strong and firm arguments. All of us should choose from among the candidates those whom we believe will give us the best government and should have the courage to voice our opinions. But this can be, and ought to be, done in a friendly, tolerant fashion. For all of us know that all the candidates can not win victory. We should give our solid support to candidates of our choice during the campaigns, and then on Election Day go to the polls and vote, and urge all our neighbors, regardless of party to do likewise.

Debate of the merits of the various candidates and the issues is an integral part of the art of politics. But bitter fighting among ourselves—the electorate—and loss of friendships as a result are costly and a waste of time.

Many voters, we are sure, would have a fuller understanding of the art of politics if they would listen to the politicians after the election results are in. Though outwardly quite belligerent on occasion, politicians generally will be found to have great respect for each other. They battle down to the Election Day line, in the Halls of Congress and in the legislatures, etc., but, as do members of the bar, there their arguments end.

Our system of government requires that there be at least two schools of thought. For that and many other reasons, every qualified voter ought to back the candidates he likes to the hilt. Then those who have backed the winners should happily celebrate, and the losers should quietly abide by the majority decisions, both sides recognizing that government will continue to function; will continue to protect and serve well.

The Pennsylvania Story

Campaign Now Under Way

Harrisburg—In a somewhat strained sense it can be said perhaps that the political campaign in Pennsylvania "officially" gets under way tomorrow.

This in itself is somewhat of a joke when you stop to think about it — or even if you don't think about it — for if the two lads seeking the gubernatorial post haven't been campaigning for the past several months in already vigorous fettle, it's difficult to imagine then what they have been doing!

In any event, it seems there has to be some sort of "official" start of such events and tomorrow can be more or less be classed as the day the gun is fired, the champagne bottle is shattered, or whatever is necessary to formally get the show on the road.

Credit for the official ship launching must go to Pennsylvania Republicans for it is tomorrow in Scranton that Republicans have their first big festive splash as they tender a dinner in honor of Republican gubernatorial candidate William W. (for Warren) Scranton — with none other than former President Eisenhower heading the guest list.

Keystone State GOPsters in lighter moods are referring to this as the official kickoff of the fall campaign for the governorship. This then becomes the initial boom.

Pennsylvania Democrats will play second fiddle in this respect — if they can get all their strings tuned — inasmuch as their big festive splash doesn't come until nearly a week later on September 20 when they have their $100-a-plate dinner at the Farm Show Building here in Harrisburg with President Kennedy heading their guest list.

This business of "officially" starting the campaign has been pretty much scrubbed this year for if our notes serve us correctly both Democratic gubernatorial hopeful Richardson Dilworth and his counterpart in the GOP orchard have been hitting the road pretty well during the past six months.

In fact they were so industrious in this respect that during the past spring primary both candidates for the top spot ignored their primary opposition and went at each other hammer and screw driver rather than confining insults to opposition candidates within their own respective parties.

In other words, that's fall campaigning in the spring.

There is some question as to what the campaign will be like now that it has been officially launched. They've already gone through the name-calling stage (usually a sport reserved for the final fling days); the dignity of the Governor's Office long ago became entangled in political campaign bog replete with spirited denunciations, leers, sneers and hisses; and the two party state chairmen have all but taken pot shots at each other with round barreled muskets under cover of darkness.

What then is left for the "official" campaign that after tomorrow will be under way?

Most of the big bug bombs have already been fired by both sides; what happens now is mostly anticlimactic, and much of the stuff is already becoming painfully repetitious — such as Democratic Governor Lawrence's continual reference to Scranton utterances as lack of knowledge of government ("That just, again, points out his complete lack of knowledge of what is going on.")

About the only thing left for the two candidates now is a down-to-earth rough and tumble water bag battle — but even that unquestionably would be tied up interminably on resolving such ground rules as weight of water bags to be used, hard or soft water, etc., just as befell the notorious TV debate "basics."

But be all this as it may, the fact remains that the fall campaign will officially get under way in Pennsylvania tomorrow — undeniably a noteworthy step in some direction!

Off The Record

The other day death took the life of Danny O'Hearn, a former post graduate student at East Stroudsburg State College.

Danny matriculated on College Hill back in the late forties. The little man — all five-by-five — was active in sports activities at ESSC and umpired in baseball leagues around the area.

Danny, victim of an heart attack, was a mail carrier working out of the Scranton Post Office.

Danny was a boxer in the old days and later founded several Little Leagues in the Coal Regions.

He leaves a wife and six children.

Rev. John Bollier, pastor of the Stroudsburg Presbyterian Church, and his family have returned after a month-long journey to the West Coast.

The Bolliers travelled nearly 9,000 miles, covering the territory from San Francisco to Los Angeles like a tent.

In fact it was a tent life all the way for the family which lives in suburban Stroudsburg.

Credit Pete Wyckoff for the majority of the tub-thumping for last night's appearance of Rubinoft and his violin at East Stroudsburg High School.

The effervescent crowd official kept the coming of Rubinoft before the public's eye for the last month.

Pre-concert ticket sales were heartening and the Monroe Hospital Expansion Fund is expected to get a nice piece of change when all of the returns are in.

Help was mighty tough to come by in an out-of-the-way Missouri town, and "Pop" Miller, who ran the biggest — in fact, the only — motel thereabouts was reluctant to part with his night clerk, despite the fact that said clerk was a hopeless kleptomaniac. "Pop" Miller finally solved his problem. Over the desk in the lobby he hung this sign: "Leave your valuables with our night clerk. He'll get them anyway."

Washington — Russia is sending "offensive" type jet aircraft to Cuba.

Already, a dozen Mig-21s, the fastest of the Soviet jet fighters, have been spotted both in the skies over Cuba and at airfields near Havana.

Two Soviet TU-16 "Badgers," medium jet bombers, have been photographed in Cuba by U. S. intelligence sources.

These new Soviet aircraft are in addition to 130 Mig-19s and Mig-17s that the Russians turned over to the Cuban airforce earlier this year.

The tell-tale vapor trails of the "Badgers" — the first Soviet bombers to appear in the Western Hemisphere — indicate that these twin engine jets are being used on electronic snooping missions that range within forty miles of the Florida Coast.

Also, the first Mig-21s, because of specially designed plastic camera attachments, were described in U. S. intelligence reports as "U-2 type aircraft" when they appeared in Cuba.

However, a closer examination by U. S. intelligence agents disclosed that the planes were the high-flying, supersonic Mig-21s with reconnaissance equipment attached to their slim fuselage.

A squadron of six Mig-21s showed up last week carrying infrared air-to-air missiles similar to the U. S. Air Force's deadly Sidewinder — which the Chinese Nationalists have used effectively in knocking down Soviet-built Migs over the Formosa Straits.

Soviet pilots are believed to be flying the Mig-21s and TU-16s while the Mig-17s and Mig-19s are being flown by Cuban pilots trained in Prague. Intercepted radio calls bear this out. For instance, all Mig-21 pilots use the Russian language in communicating with their ground bases.

Cuba To Berlin — The growing Soviet air build-up in Cuba comes at a time when the Russians are increasing and modernizing the East German airforce along the air corridors from West Germany to West Berlin.

The Soviets are replacing the Mig-19s, located at seven airfields near the corridors, with Mig-21s. An estimated 200 jet planes are involved. These planes are being flown by both Soviet and East German pilots.

As reported in this column on Sept. 4, the East Germans are expected to soon begin harassing the Allies' Berlin air traffic with newly installed "electronic counter equipment."

These electronic devices, similar to those being installed in Cuba, are showing up in East Berlin and along the three air corridors linking West Berlin to West Germany.

These "ECE" stations are being readied to blockade the corridors by jamming the guidance control systems of Allied aircraft flying into the big Tempelhof Airfield in West Berlin.

For instance, "ECE" equipment has just been installed on top of a seven-story building in East Berlin. By using this jamming device, the East Germans can knock out the radio guidance system of allied planes flying into Tempelhof in bad weather.

To neutralize this jamming threat, U. S. military officials in West Berlin have proposed that an eight story steel tower be built directly across the border and equipped with a Davey Crockett, a launcher that can fire a nuclear armed rocket. If the East Germans used the jamming device, the U. S. would let the rocket fly.

All of these moves by the Soviets support the growing belief in defense and intelligence circles here that Soviet Premier Khrushchev intends, at long last, to sign his "Peace Treaty" with East Germany, and use the East Germans and the Cubans to apply new pressures to get the West out of Berlin.

Intelligence Flashes — Those missile-carrying Soviet patrol vessels now in Cuban waters are of the Komar class. To date, eight of these speedy patrol craft have been spotted by U. S. Naval Intelligence. Their missiles, which can carry nuclear warheads, have a range of "more than 30 miles," according to latest intelligence estimates. A number of these patrol craft carry four missiles, the others two. Armed with a nuclear warhead, the missiles could easily sink a carrier.

Dr. Schwarz's Difficulty

Dr. Fred Schwarz, who operates the Christian Anti-Communist Crusade, found New York to be a cold, distant city. He ran an anti-Communist Meeting in Madison Square Garden which was attended by only 8,000 which in New York City is a small audience. His anti-Communist School was held in the smaller Carnegie Hall and was poorly attended. Altogether Dr. Schwarz is reported to have said that the operation netted him a loss of $75,000.

That is a lot of money to lose. Dr. Schwarz was apparently poorly advised. New York City is no place to hold such meetings in August. It is too hot, too humid, too sticky. Secondly, an anti-Communist school implies that folks need to be taught.

New York City includes some 60 institutions of higher education, including Columbia, New York, Fordham, St. John's, Yeshiva Universities, to mention only a few. These universities deal with Marxism, Socialism, Communism, etc., through scholarship and usually students of these subjects are familiar with German and Russian and even Chinese and are doing original research.

However, the Australian doctor and his associates have since been explaining the failure as the result of a conspiracy against him. In other words, Khrushchev took time off from the satellite business and building a wall around Berlin to prevent eager New Yorkers from going to Schwarz's school at Carnegie Hall. Those who wanted to go, could go. The doors were open.

No! There was no conspiracy against Dr. Schwarz. Others have failed in New York — the Giants had to move to San Francisco and the Dodgers to Los Angeles. There was no conspiracy against them.

Folks in New York wonder where they will park their car and whether they can find a baby-sitter. Nevertheless, Norman Vincent Peale usually fills his church and St. Patrick's is jammed on an Easter Sunday.

A man wrote me that in Tyler, Texas, Dr. Schwarz claimed that he received minutes of secret meetings of Jewish organizations who were plotting how to sabotage him. I should like to see such minutes. Not only Jews, but many Protestant ministers were antagonistic to Schwarz's New York campaign, but there was no conspiracy. Everything was in the open.

In the five thousand years of Jewish history, the Jews have learned to fear the apostate. Many of the most outrageous libels against the Jews, throughout their history, originated with apostates. Dr. Fred Schwarz's father was a Jew who became a Christian and here is his son, who when an operation of his fails, by innuendo blames it upon a conspiracy, which, the way it is said, may be called a Jewish conspiracy. That was what Jewish apostates did from Hellenic times in Jerusalem to the present day. So, naturally, Jews did not take to Schwarz. But there was no conspiracy.

Dr. Schwarz says: "We are not anti-Semitic. There is nothing anti-Semitic about being a Christian. We have one common enemy — Communism."

Nevertheless, Dr. Walter Kerr in an interview with "The Texas Observer" says: "Boy, I tell you, (Schwarz) spells out a death struggle with the Jews. I was quite amazed and really rather heart sick . . . Schwarz said, 'New York is controlled by them,' that is, by Jews. He said the thing is divided down the middle, Christians and Jews."

It has apparently become a crime not to meet Dr. Schwarz. My friend, Bill Buckley, makes quite a point of that in an article in the "National Review," which was founded for more serious purposes. This is an unwarranted statement.

"As an experienced man, he" (Dr. Schwarz) is well aware of the tendency, so frequently remarked, to brand an anti-Semitic anyone associated with an explicitly Christian undertaking who is also a tough anti-Communist or conservative. . . .

Cardinal Spellman is a Christian, a tough anti-Communist and a conservative, but no sensible person would call him an anti-Semite. Dr. Dan Polling, editor of "The Christian Herald," is a Christian, an anti-Communist and a conservatione and no sensible person would call him an anti-Semite. Buckley is off base about that.

An attack was made on Arnold Forster of the Anti-Defamation League that he would not meet Dr. Schwarz. That is a matter of taste. Dr. Schwarz has been in this country eight or nine years and many persons have not met him. In fact, more persons have not met him than have met him.

$116,516 Campaign Launched

Person-To-Person Approach

Aim Of Community Chest

By Bobby Westbrook
THE person-to-person approach to community giving was stressed at an 8 a. m. breakfast meeting of the advanced gifts committee of the United Appeal of the Monroe County Community Chest and Red Cross at the Penn-Stroud Hotel yesterday.

About 40 of the 60 hand-picked committee were present for the breakfast at which they received the cards of the donors they will contact on a personal basis.

"If we care enough, we'll give enough," Jesse Flory, first vice president of the Chest in his brief remarks, launching the $116,516 campaign on behalf of the 33 member agencies.

"It is not the Community Chest which is on trial this year but each one of us," he added, pointing out that if this committee failed in its responsibility the campaign and the Chest itself might fail.

"We have been chipping away at the Chest," he charged.

"We have tended to regard the Chest as 'just another agency, another drive' when it is really a spirit that goes back to our beginning—our concern for our neighbor."

Illustrative Point
"We have been willing to let other people do the work with excuses that we've already done our share or are too busy. To prove the point that none of us have done enough we have drafted back into office men who have already served as presidents or campaign chairmen of the Chest," Flory pointed out telling an illustrative story:

A small mountain village wished to honor the priest who had served it faithfully for 50 years. So poor was the village that they could not afford even the smallest gift. Instead they decided to have a fiesta with each family contributing one bottle of wine to add to a cask for the celebration.

When on the day of the fiesta, each man came pouring his bottle into the cask. But when the cask was tapped, it held nothing but water. And each man blamed his neighbor, saying "If you had brought wine, my water wouldn't have mattered."

"We must all give our full portion," Flory said and discussed the question of "How much should we give?"

"If you know enough about the Chest and the work of its agencies, and care enough about your neighbors, you will give enough. If you gave enough last year, add 40 per cent this year to take care of the addition of the Red Cross as a member agency and the increasing services of the individual agencies. If you didn't give enough last year, double or triple the amount."

The future of the Chest depends on you—on your work and your giving."

Flory was introduced by the campaign chairman, Nelson Westbrook, who also introduced the Chest president, Clifford Gilliam, and second vice president, Arlington Williams. Rev. John Bolter gave the invocation for the breakfast.

Mrs. Ethel West, executive secretary, explained the mechanics of the campaign and distributed cards to the workers, each card bearing the amount each donor should give to make the campaign a success.

Two questions were raised at the meeting:
(1) "Has there been any preliminary 'softening up' of the prospects or must we do our own selling job?"

Answer: Each member of the advanced gift committee must be his own salesman for the Chest. They have been given at most three or four cards, to each of which they are asked to talk personally and convincingly of the need. Report meetings will be held Sept. 19 and Sept. 26 at breakfast meetings by which time, the advanced gift campaign is expected to be over.

(2) "What is our answer to the objection that if this is a United Campaign why are there still drives every month?"

Answer: The United Appeal represents all those agencies willing to join with us. Other agencies have been invited to join but either because they are not permitted to join because of their national by-laws or because they think they can raise more money on their own prefer to conduct independent campaigns over which the Chest has no control.

Mrs. West outlined briefly the services represented:
The Boy Scouts, open to all Monroe County boys with a professional director in the county;
The Child Health Committee which serves all children of school age whose parents may provide food and shelter but not the added cost of dental and medical care;
The Children's Aid Society which is adding family counseling to its care for neglected or dependent children;
The General Hospital who uses the Community Chest funds for free care for patients not otherwise provided;
The Girl Scouts open to all Monroe County girls now associated in the Scranton Pocono Council;
Guidance Center
The Guidance Center providing psychiatric services to study and treat emotional problems of children and adults;
The Mental Health Assn. which educated the community about mental health and mental illness and refers those seeking help to appropriate agencies;
The Pennsylvania Citizens' Assn. which studies welfare bills in Harrisburg for the purpose of safeguarding the public interest;
The Red Cross, joining for the first time this year to make a United Appeal for its many services to blood donor service, Gray Ladies, home service to veterans, disaster relief, life saving and water safety, canteen, home nursing education and motor corps.
The Salvation Army which provides a program to meet social and spiritual welfare of the community, particularly for the underprivileged.
The USO to which the county contributes roughly $1 for each county man in the Armed Services for clubs and centers in this country and overseas.
The Visiting Nurse Assn., which provides services of registered nurses for bedside care to medical, surgical, chronic and maternity cases with free care for those who cannot pay a part or all of the cost of a visit.
The YMCA which offers a program of education and recreation through clubs, hobby groups and individual services.

Conservation Aid For Six Farms Sought

A MEETING of the Monroe County Soil Conservation Board was held last night with chairman Elmer Keger presiding. Directors approved application for conservation planning assistance for six farms containing 600 acres combined.

Also discussed was the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Rural Recreation Program.

A Norman Dietrick, local representative of the Soil Conservation Service, gave a progress report on the Upper Broadhead Creek Water Shed.

It was also pointed out that the county commissioners are in process of securing easements for flood control structures above Canadensis.

Attending the meeting were Secretary - Treasurer Raymond Alleger, and A. W. Martin a member.

In addition, field representative Homer Hilner of the State Soil Conservation Commission, who is also head of the Northeast area and Jack Dennison, Pennsylvania Department of Forest and Water, were in attendance.

New Animal Farm Yak

A BABY yak, born one week ago at the Pocono Wild Animal Farm, South Stroudsburg, will be in the big enclosure today between 9 a.m. and 5:30 p.m.

Dr. Claude Leister, owner-operator, of the farm said the animal weighed approximately 30 pounds when she was born. No name has been chosen for the yak. The Leisters plan on holding a contest among visitors, to name her.

In Tibet, the yak is a valuable animal. Leister pointed out. Natives use the hides for clothing, the wool for cloth, the milk for cheese, butter and for drinking.

In addition, transportation is provided by the bovine animals.

The little one has been kept in the enclosure with her mother since birth and is still nursing. She won't be eating any crackers, but will be out where the public will be able to touch her today and have their pictures taken with her. She will be returned to her mother's cage at night.

Education Seen 'Big Business'

HAWLEY — "Education is big business," supervising principal Maurice Bobst pointed out to directors of Wallenpaupack Area Joint School Board at the meeting at the high school, as he listed 1,240 students in the jointure this term.

Giving a report on schools in the jointure, Mr. Bobst noted the following breakdown of classes: first grade, 114 students; second, 123; third, 109; fourth, 85; fifth, 114; sixth, 110; seventh, 95; eighth, 98; ninth, 101; tenth, 80; eleventh, 100; twelfth, 66; seven in elementary special education at Newfoundland; 15 in elementary special education in Hawley; and 14 in secondary special education.

He listed 61 professional employees in the jointure; three part-time and three special education; three secretaries, seven cafeteria workers, nine janitors and 28 bus drivers.

He noted a payroll monthly for professional employees of the jointure at $25,000; non-professional $11,500; and bus drivers, $7,255.

Mr. Bobst pointed out that this year, Southern Wayne School went on a seven-period day schedule to conform with the Hawley School. However, a shortage of teachers and classrooms forced the latter school to change to an eight-period schedule for the first time in five years. He said that he considered the seven-period schedule a more effective one.

The board authorized Mr. Bobst and the administrative committee to hire "half a teacher" — one for half a day, if necessary.

Approval was given by the board for the hiring of Mrs. Beverly Wenkosky, English and mathematics at Hawley; Mrs. Edith Wallat, Latin (half-day), Hawley; Mrs. Helen McGovern, homemaking, Southern Wayne; and Mrs. Margaret Price, commercial, Southern Wayne.

Fred Schoenagel, clerk of the works for the new Wallenpaupack Area Joint School, noted that rough grading has been completed and the excavation for footings has been partially completed. He said that the project is "running into difficulty" with rock, and that it may be necessary to bring in more excavating equipment. Concrete footings are expected to be poured this week or next, he said.

Folding Doors
Brunswick Corporation, represented by Roberts and Meek, received the bid for folding doors for the gymnasium and basketball goals, on a total bid of $13,920.

There was a discussion of alienation, and the building committee agreed to meet with the architect and contractors to further discuss them.

A bank balance of $42,336.76, was reported by Mrs. Murphy, treasurer.

There was a request by the mothers of elementary school students that physical education and a physical fitness program be started in the jointure. Southern Wayne reported that such a program is already in progress at the school in Newfoundland.

Mental Health Air Series

DR. HOWARD T. Fiedler, superintendent of Allentown State Hospital and president of the Lehigh Valley Neuropsychiatric Society, announced yesterday an important series of information programs will be broadcast over WKAP concerning all phases of mental health and human behavior.

"The series of programs will be designed to present to the public, on a level everyone can understand, facts and information about mental health and human behavior," Dr. Fiedler pointed out.

The series will be moderated by Dr. David Orr, Director of Psychological Services, Allentown State Hospital. Dr. Orr will be talking to a number of important area people throughout the series. The programs will cover: Mental Health, What is Normal Behavior, Legal Aspects of Mental Health, Social Agencies, Careers in Mental Health, Therapies, Children's Problems In School, Mental Retardation, Child Guidance, and many more vital topics.

The programs will be broadcast each Wednesday evening at 7:45 p.m. over radio station WKAP.

"This gives us a great opportunity to continue our programs of education of the residents of this area in mental health and mental health facilities," Dr. Fiedler said.

Radio Station Is Bankrupt

SCRANTON, Pa. (AP)—Scranton Radio Corp., operator of Station WICK, yesterday filed a petition in federal court for an arrangement under the bankruptcy act. The petition lists Joseph Dobbs, holder of 500 shares in the firm, as president.

Under the proposed arrangement, unsecured creditors would receive 40 percent in cash, a first payment to be made in 120 days and succeeding 10 percent payments each 120 days.

The petition lists debts totaling $39,000 and assets of $47,846, including a radio transmitter valued at $38,000.

William S. Pola, 28, of Wilmerding was indicted for the pistol-murder of Dr. Daniel Thaw, 61, on June 1 in Dr. Thaw's office at Leech Farm Veterans' Administration Hospital.

Second Set Of Twins Born

LANCASTER, Pa. (AP)—The second set of twins in less than a year were born Tuesday to Mrs. Leonard R. Smullen of Oxford, Pa. A 3 pound, 11 ounce girl and a 3 pound, 14 ounce boy are the latest addition to the Smullen family, which numbers four. The first set was born last Sept. 24. Mrs. Smullen, who said twins were not expected either time, commented, "The hospital will never see me again." Smullen, a breeder and trainer of horses on his 160-acre farm in Oxford, echoed his wife's sentiments: "I don't know what my secret is, but I hope I lose it." The hospital was more optimistic. "We'll see you again next year," officials told the Smullens. Twins aren't a novelty on either side of the Smullen family. Mrs. Smullen said one of her aunts had two sets and a relative on her father's side one; her husband's aunt also had a set.

Mr. and Mrs. Robert Joseph Shiffer

Miss Sandra Ann Fish Bride Of Robert J. Shiffer

Miss Sandra Ann Fish, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Willard B. Fish, 113 Lenox Ave., East Stroudsburg, became the bride of Robert Joseph Shiffer, son of Mr. and Mrs. James Shiffer, Stroudsburg, on Saturday, Aug. 25.

Rev. Harold C. Eaton, pastor of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, officiated at the 2 p. m. double ring ceremony in the presence of friends and relatives. The church altar vases were decorated with white chrysanthemums and

Just Between Us — —

—By Bobby Westbrook

It wasn't just the calendar that needed somebody to twist the "vertical hold" knob to make it slow down; so did I. Theoretically, getting up at 7:30 for an 8 a. m. breakfast meeting should have given me a flying start on the day, with everything neatly under control and ahead of schedule.

Instead of which I got caught in the editorial fly-wheel composed of obituaries, inquiries about everything under the sun from court terminology to the baseball scores, and a series about stock price ranges, politics, and new doctors. By the time the dust cleared and the rest of the editorial force had returned from whatever orbit they'd been caught up on, there was three hours to get out my own page which I served a whole day all to itself.

The Community Chest advanced gifts kick-off breakfast got off serenely enough with 40 men all smelling of shaving lotion and fresh starched shirts, all present and accounted for the speeches brief and to the point, and the Mayor sitting next to me just in case I got a ticket before the breakfast was over.

On the way out, there was Mr. Violin himself, Rubinoft — and his violin, with Claire Smith in tow, just finishing breakfast and full of praise for the local arrangements for his concert. Incidentally, in addition to that famous violin, his violin case also holds pictures of Rubinoft as a young man in conference with Philip Sousa, I paused long enough to discover.

It was after that that everything happened, including the quarry cave-in, et cetera, et cetera. Somewhere in the midst of which I covered the Woodrow Horn political speech, probably with breakfast egg still on my chin. Anyway he gave me food for thought — but I had to by-pass that wonderful-looking refreshment table with real food on it in order to catch the next ring on the merry-go-round.

The amazing thing about a day like that is to go home to find the bed still unmade, my bedroom slippers still faking the quick step I had shed them with in my headlong dash for the door, as if only a minute had passed. You feel like hollering "Hey, run that through again — only slower". Like maybe a month slower.

Band Mothers Review Projects Past, Future

Reports of Summer projects were given at the opening meeting of the East Stroudsburg Area Band Mothers this week with 45 mothers present and Mrs. Allen Sterner presiding.

Mrs. Jay Snover gave a complete report on the Band Festival when $521.79 was realized. Profits from the Fireman's parade stand amounted to $44.69.

Brooms may be purchased by calling Mrs. Rudolph Blittz Jr., 421-8624 or by asking for a Band Mothers broom at Koster's store.

Mrs. Clinton Boushell was named chairman of the rummage sale to be held at the store next to the Grand Theater on Nov. 1 and 2.

Mrs. Fred Fatzinger and Mrs. Paul Flory were named to a welfare committee. Mrs. Howard Kintner gave the report of the auditing committee which included Mrs. Melvin McElwain and Mrs. Norman Potter.

The Band Mothers voted to buy lots for use at future outdoor activities.

Robert Zellner spoke on the committees needed to prepare for the District Band Festival to be held in March and displayed the trophy and check given to the band by the Stroud Twp. Firemen for their participation in the parade.

Entertainment included an alto clarinet solo, "Valse Scintilla" by Barbara Michaels with Ora Michaels as accompanist, and a fresh horn solo, "Sylvan Colors" by Peter Mauser, accompanied by Susan Fatzinger.

Orientation For New SUHS Parents Held At School

Problems of transportation, overcrowding and homework were discussed for the 50 parents who attended the orientation program held this week under the auspices of the Stroud Union Parent Teachers Assn. in the high school cafeteria. Many of them were parents of seventh grade students entering the high school for the first time.

Mrs. Andrew Keiser, PTA president, introduced Principal Albert Munson who in turn introduced the other speakers.

Samuel Wells, assistant principal, discussed transportation and attendance, warning parents that the bus driver is in supreme command while the children are in the bus and that parents will be held responsible for any trouble their children may cause him. Each bus carries between 50 to 70 students on each trip.

The student who is regular in attendance does better work in school than those who miss, Wells quoted statistics to prove.

This year opened with one of the smoothest first days of school they had ever experienced, Raymond Serfass, guidance director, said, attributing it to the fact that orientation really began last spring and praising the members of the Junior Honor Society for their assistance during the orientation.

Lack of doing homework is the major cause of student failure, Serfass said, urging parents to help students by encouraging them to set a time and proper place for study and by respecting that time. He urged the use of assignment books.

Robert Wert, special guidance counselor for the seventh and eighth grades, explained that his major concern is that each student is identified and understood. He invited parents to help by letting him know of any problems that may be bothering a student. He called their attention to two receive "Teenage Guide" and booklets the seventh grader will receive.

Attending were Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Dougher, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Polinski, Mr. and Mrs. Elwood Herring, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Harloe, Miss Ann Anglemeyer, Michael O'Malley and Morgan L. Jones.

Solos and duets by Miss Anglemeyer and Morgan Jones, with William Savitz, accordionist accompanying them, were featured as entertainment.

Invited but not attending were Lucy O'Malley, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Kimler, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Martin and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee.

NL Playoff Possibility

Dodgers, Giants May Meet Again

NEW YORK (AP) — The feeling becomes stronger each day that another National League pennant playoff may be in the offing. San Francisco Manager Alvin Dark apparently is thinking of just such a possibility. Tuesday, after his Giants had beaten Pittsburgh for their seventh consecutive triumph and moved into a temporary first place tie with Los Angeles, he said:

"Wouldn't it be something if there is a playoff and we get another crack at the Dodgers?"

The Dodgers regained their half game lead Tuesday night, defeating the Chicago Cubs 3-1.

Split 18 Games

The Dodgers and Giants do not play each other again during the regular season. They split the 18

14 Slated To Run At Aqueduct

NEW YORK (AP)—The seemingly endless search for a solid Eastern candidate for the 2-year-old title continues Saturday at Aqueduct with 14 juveniles expected to battle for a purse of $153,650.

The Cain Hoy Stable's Never Bend, favorite last Saturday in the Arlington-Washington Futurity in Chicago but beaten by Candy Spots, and the Greenleaf Stable entry of Catullus and Outing Class head the Aqueduct field.

The lightly raced Never Bend, who was third in the Sapping at Monmouth Park in his other major stakes engagement, will have a new rider, Willie Shoemaker takes over, replacing Manuel Yonca, under suspension by the Illinois Racing Board after his futile claim of foul against Candy Spots.

Catullus won the Juvenile and the Flash Stakes, and was favored in the Hopeful at Saratoga. However, he was bumped sharply and stalemated Outing Class rushed up to win and save the day for the Greentree entry.

Three other stakes winners are expected to start in the 6½-furlong event, which for years was raced down the straight course at Belmont Park. They are Patrice Jacobs' Bonjour, winner of the Tremont; Elmendorf Farm's Red Prince, the Sanford victor; and Bwamazon Farm's Bora Bora, who took the Freshman Stakes at Washington Park.

Other Starters

Others in the probable lineup are the Darby Dun entry of Ornamento and Almanac, Harbor View Farm's Master Dennis, Michael Phipps' Final Ruling, Joseph M. Roebing's Pack Trip, Wheatley Stable's Bold Commander, George D. Widener's Crewman, and Elberon Farm's Run Through. Run Through, a $14,500 Keeneland yearling, has won twice in four starts and is a newcomer to the field from the Midwest.

If all start, the winner will collect $16,322.50, making this the fourth richest Futurity.

Varsity 'S' Meets Tonight

A MEETING between coaches and other interested persons in the Varsity "S" junior football program will be held tonight in the banquet room of the Town Tavern, Stroudsburg, starting at 8 p.m.

Bill Schoonover, commissioner of the program, has urged as "large an attendance as possible."

Mele, Rig Look For Miracle

NEW YORK (AP)—The managers of the Los Angeles Angels and Minnesota Twins apparently agree on one thing — nothing short of a miracle will enable them to overtake the New York Yankees in the American League pennant race.

Neither manager said so outright Wednesday but their words left little room for doubt as to their meaning.

After his Angels had wrested second place from the Twins Tuesday, Los Angeles Manager Billy Rigney was asked if he still was confident of overtaking the Yankees, whom the Angels trail by four games. His reply was "why not?"

'Biggest Since Brinks'

But jokingly he admitted: "It would be the biggest steal since the Brinks robbery."

Manager Sam Mele of the Twins who dropped into third place at 4½ games behind following their second straight shutout defeat by the Angels, was even more dubious.

"We're just about at the end of the rope," he said. "We certainly can't be losing like this. We can't afford to lose—not at all."

The Twins have 15 games left to play, 11 at home. However, they have three against Detroit and six against Baltimore, each of whom is battling for a first division finish.

The Angels have 16 games left, 10 at home, but five are against the Tigers, who hold a 7-6 edge over them.

The Yankees have 14 games left, only five at home. Their toughest opposition may come from the Chicago White Sox, whom they are scheduled to meet six times, three at home and three on the road.

Bosox Blast Detroit In Doubleheader

DETROIT (AP) — The Boston Red Sox overpowered the Detroit Tigers with three-run homers by Eddie Bressoud and Frank Malzone for 8-6 and 6-2 victories in a doubleheader Wednesday.

Bressoud won the opener with his homer in the ninth after the Tigers had gone ahead 6-5 on Rocky Colavito's two-run homer in the eighth.

Malzone's homer accounted for the winning run in the nightcap. It came in the third inning and sent the Red Sox ahead 5-0.

Three pitchers held the Tigers for four hits in the nightcap, with starter Don Schwall earning the victory.

Colavito Hits Two

Colavito twice put the Tigers ahead in the opener with home runs. His 34th homer snapped a 2-2 tie in the sixth and was followed by Norm Cash's 35th homer. The Sox went ahead on Bob Tilton's homer in the seventh and two more runs in the eighth.

But Colavito's 35th homer, with Al Kaline aboard, sent the Tigers ahead for the third time in the opener.

Pumpsie Green's scratch single and a walk off ray Ray Nischwitz provided Bressoud's homer off Ronnie Kline.

Lehigh Gridders Hit By Injuries To Two Backs

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (Sept. 12) —During the first half of pre-season practice, the words "backfield depth" brightened the outlook of Lehigh head coach Mike Cooley, who was counting on the host of Engineer backs to help offset definite weaknesses in the line. However, injuries to two top backs have temporarily sidelined Cooley's plans.

Ed Winchester (Warwick, N. Y.), senior halfback who saw limited action last year when the Engineers won the Lambert Cup as the East's best small-college team, has suffered a recurrence of his 1961 leg injury. He will miss Lehigh's scrimmage with Princeton this Saturday (Sept. 15), and is a doubtful starter in the season opener against Delaware on Sept. 22.

Hopson Sidelined

A pulled muscle has sidelined sophomore Howard Hopson (Wayne), a powerful runner who was certain to see duty either as a fullback or right halfback. Two linemen also out of action with leg injuries are Charles Ortman (Maupeth, N. Y.), the top sophomore line prospect, and junior tackle Don Marshall (Miami, Oklahoma), the squad's heaviest player at 230 pounds.

Starved Grid Fans Off Diet

THE LONG-STARVED football fans of this area, who were fed but an appetizer consisting of two portions last week, will be served a full six-course pigskin platter this weekend starting tomorrow night.

The diet is now off.

Scholastic gridgers enter the football limelight tomorrow when the Stroud Union Mountaineers entertain the rebuilding Indians of Lehigh High; East Stroudsburg's Cavaliers travel to Slatington, and the defending champs of the Lehigh-Northampton League — Pen Argyl's Green Knights—unwrap their wares at Muhlenberg Township. All games will be under the lights.

While scholastic action resumes Saturday with Bangor's Slaters at Parkland and Pleasant Valley Joint High School's Bears entertaining the Pen Argyl JV's, the collegiate season also opens with East Stroudsburg State College playing host to a strong Mountclair State eleven in an arc tilt at the East Stroudsburg High School field.

The Pius X Royals, who opened their season last Friday night with an 18-13 loss to Bristol, are idle this week.

Poco Mountain Joint High School's Cardinals, who absorbed a 6-0 loss in their opener last Saturday to Pen Argyl JV's, play again next Monday at home against the Stroud Union JV's.

Three Matches In MCL Tonight

THREE matches are scheduled for tonight in the Monroe County Bowling League at Harmon's:

Dupas Fined For Butting

LONDON (AP) — Ralph Dupas of New Orleans, disqualified for butting in his fight against Britain's Brian Curvis Tuesday night, was fined $280 Wednesday by the British Boxing Board of Control.

The six-round disqualification robbed Dupas of a possible return against world champion Emile Griffith and opened the way to a title fight for Curvis, who is the welterweight champion.

"The stewards of the British board were very fair," Dupas said afterwards. "I am very well satisfied."

Mantle's HR Trips Indians

CLEVELAND (AP) — Mickey Mantle hit a three-run homer Wednesday night to power the New York Yankees to a 5-2 victory over the Cleveland Indians in the final game of the season between the two teams.

The defeat mathematically eliminated the Indians from a chance of overtaking the Yankees in the American League pennant race.

Ford Wins 16th

Southpaw Whitey Ford went the distance in winning his 16th game in 23 decisions. The loser was starter Pete Ramos (8-12), who worked eight innings and gave up all the Yankee runs on 12 hits. Barry Latman pitched the ninth.

The Yankees took a 1-0 lead in the third inning on a double by Tony Kubek and Tom Tresh's single.

Cleveland bounced back with two runs in the fourth. Tito Francona led off with a single to stretch his hitting streak to 15 games and Chuck Essegian followed with his 20th home run.

Mantle's homer, his 27th, put the Yankees ahead 4-2 in the fifth. Scoring ahead of Mantle were Kubek and Bobby Richardson, who had singled.

Lucas Named Track Coach At Penn State

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (AP) —John A. Lucas, former Boston University track star, was named Wednesday as new head coach of the Penn State University track and cross-country teams.

The 35-year-old Lucas, a native of Boston, will take over the post of Saturday, succeeding Charles D. (Chic) Werner who is leaving Penn State to become executive director of the U. S. Track and Field Federation.

Lucas, who received a masters degree in physical education at Southern California in 1952 and a doctor of education degree from the University of Maryland last June, also will serve as associate professor of physical education at Penn State.

He was a distance specialist while at Boston University and served as cross country captain in 1949 and track captain in 1950.

Lucas comes to Penn State from the University of Maryland where he has served as assistant track and field coach since 1958.

Sports Fixers Face Sentences

WASHINGTON (AP) — Gamblers, players or others who conspire to fix sports contests by bribery could be fined up to $5,000 and imprisoned for 10 years under a bill unanimously passed by the Senate Wednesday and sent to the House.

Sen. Kenneth B. Keating, R-N.Y., said federal criminal law is needed to stamp out such scandals as basketball score rigging and similar deals involving gambling syndicates.

The Senate bill would make it a crime to use interstate commerce facilities in an effort to rig any sports contests, amateur or professional.

Wills Takes Steal Show On Road

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Baseball's greatest base thief since the great Tyus Raymond Cobb took his burglary act on the road Wednesday for the final time this season.

Maurice Morning (Maury) Wills of the Los Angeles Dodgers is the gentleman in question, or as rival pitchers and catchers prefer, the rogue and villain of the base paths.

And sometime between Wednesday night in Houston, where the Dodgers were slated to meet the Colts and the return of the club to Dodger Stadium Sept. 25, the mighty little one seems certain to break one of the game's most sacred records, one that seemed as secure as Babe Ruth's 60 home runs until Roger Maris eclipsed it last year.

96 Skidoo

That would be the 96 bases stolen in 1955 by Cobb, the immortal Georgia Peach.

Wills headed on to this trip just six behind the Cobb record. He got No. 90 Tuesday night, his 14th in six games and 30th in the last 25 games.

Wills is quite aware of the Cobb record. And he seems embarrassed when the Cobb record is emphasized or obvious comparisons with Cobb are made.

"No," Wills insists, "

Cards, Bears, Pius X 'Coming'

By Mr. Pigskin
(Third In A Series)

AL Shollenberger was a winning basketball coach at Pocono Mountain Joint and Barrett Township High before he cast his lot to tutoring the spanking new grid Cardinals at the Swiftwater educational institution.

Shollenberger isn't racking up grid victories in the same manner he posted court triumphs. But his Pocono Mountain Joint High eleven has come a long way since the school unveiled the sport 12 months ago.

For the most part Pocono Joint is playing a high school second team schedule. In a few years the Cardinals will be taking on the likes of Stroud Union, East Stroudsburg and other topnotch foes.

Considering the short time the Cardinals have been before the public's eye, great strides have been made by Shollenberger and his aides.

Last year Pocono Joint was an "away" home eleven. This year the Cardinals are performing in their new stadium which has a 1,000 seating capacity. One Pocono Joint official probably hit the nail on the head when he said, "There is nothing like playing before the home folks in your own ballpark."

In its opener last Saturday, the Cardinals dropped a squeaker to a well-tested Pen Argyl High second team. By well-tested the Green Knights' reserves were the same boys who scrimmaged Elwood Petchel's better-than good first eleven on numerous occasions.

The Cardinals showed the "home folks" that defensively they have the goods. And offensively the future can bring only better results.

Like everything else it takes time to imbue in a youngster the fundamentals of a game that is never to him than the school he attends. This is newness when you consider Pocono Mountain Joint High has only been around a few short years.

Pleasant Valley Joint High, based at Brodheadville, is in the same category as their "mountain" counterparts. This is the second season of football for the Bears of Coach Wayne Hulsizer.

Everything is practically new about Pleasant Valley, the game, uniforms, stadium and school. Hulsizer, a product of Pen Argyl's school system, is pushing the Bears along a 90 per cent desire road.

Blending determination and the basic fundamentals, the former Slate Belter athlete is bringing along the Bears at a pace which is opening the eyes of even his severest critics.

While Pleasant Valley isn't setting the world afire victory-wise, their efforts have brought the admiration of the opposition. It won't be too long before the Bears will be meeting first-class football foes in the Lehigh Valley, Pocono Mountain, and Panther Valley territories.

The big game each year for the Bears is Pocono Mountain Joint. Right now — in spirit and enthusiasm — the contest played on Thanksgiving Day is on par with the Stroud Union and East Stroudsburg "Battle of the Boroughs" Turkey Day Classic.

In the near future the spectacle will be on par with the Cavaliers and Mountaineers in execution of plays and strategy. In fact the crystal ball offers in the not too distant future such varsity football frays as Pleasant Valley versus Stroud Union and Pleasant Valley taking on East Stroudsburg, the Bears meeting Pen Argyl, and the Bears facing Bangor, in battles that could decide the scholastic football championship of the Pocono Mountains and Slate Belt.

From the mountains and out of the West End the ground has been spaded to put the Bears and Cardinals on par with the rest of the state.

Pius X High
Nestled on a hill overlooking Bangor is Pius X High. Comparatively new to the football game, the Rose-to-situated eleven has left its calling card at more than a few doors during its short football history.

Pius X, tutored by Vince Shemansky, can be likened to baseball's Los Angeles Angels. Their rise in the scholastic grid picture

Antelami 7-1 To Win St. Leger

DONCASTER, England (AP) — Fifteen thoroughbreds from four countries were named for today's St. Leger — the oldest of Britain's horse race classics.

Bookies made the Italian Derby winner Antelami a 7-2 favorite with Larkspur, Irish-trained winner of the English Derby, second favorite at 7-1. Monterrico, an English-trained horse, was 9-1. Miralzo 10-1 and Hethersett and Idle Hour bracketed at 11-1.

The St. Leger, decided over a mile and 6 1/4 furlongs on turf, first was run in 1776. Three-year old colts and fillies from England, Ireland, France and Italy are chasing the $36,920 first money.

FRANKIE Albert, formerly a left-handed quarterback, is a part owner of the San Francisco 49ers.

The Leafs and Hawks will meet in Chicago where Toronto won the coveted cup April 22 with a 2-1 victory.

The campaign opens on two other fronts, Thursday, Oct. 11, with Montreal at Boston and Detroit at New York.

OKLAHOMA State University had a father-son golf setup this spring. Labron Harris, Sr., coached the team and his son Labron, Jr., competed.

Scranton Hits At Dilworth

PITTSBURGH (AP)—U. S. Rep. William Scranton, Republican candidate for governor, said Wednesday night his opponent is ignorant about industry and hostile toward it.

Scranton said Richardson Dilworth "has already seriously damaged our (Pennsylvania's) industrial climate" by threatening to remove the sales tax exemption from new industrial machinery.

Scranton said he interprets this as an indication Dilworth "is prepared to wreck our entire industrial development program... as much out of ignorance as out of actual hostility" to industry.

He made the remarks in a speech prepared for delivery before the Smaller Manufacturers Council of Allegheny County.

Switching his criticism from Dilworth to Democrats in general, Scranton said he is concerned with what he called the erosion of industrial confidence. In Pennsylvania state government as a result of "petty corruption and fantastic inefficiency" in the present administration.

On the general subject of progress for the Pittsburgh area, Scranton outlined a seven-point plan. It included economic development, improved labor-management relations, community development, housing, mass transit, greater utilization of higher education facilities and improved strip mining laws.

Scranton added that the main responsibility for developing the Pittsburgh economy should rest with state and local bodies rather than the federal government.

Focus On Health

Miniature Heart Machine

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

A miniature machine for miniature heart patients, iodine and its 15 million small enemies, and a look at children split from reality are subjects with a focus on health.

Miniatures

There is now a machine that can breathe and freshen blood for babies.

University of Michigan doctors have scaled down the larger heart-lung machines used for adults to produce a miniature device for infants.

It gives the doctor precise control over the blood supply of the infant during open heart surgery, in which heart defects are corrected. The heart-lung machine circulates and freshens the patient's blood during surgery, enabling surgeons to work longer on the heart.

6-Pound Subject

The smallest baby yet operated on with the new heart-lung device weighed only 6 pounds. The youngest was 12 days old. Both operations were successful.

There are some 15 million microscopic germs on your hands right now, unless you washed recently with a potent antiseptic.

And one of the most effective of antiseptics, says Dr. Harold A. Sitkoff, Pennsylvania podiatrist, is iodine.

Once commonly used, iodine lost popularity because it irritated the skin, Sitkoff says. Now its coming back, combined with other ingredients that reduce its irritating qualities.

You probably won't want to wash those bacteria-laden hands with iodine. But, says Dr. Sitkoff, a two-minute washing with alcohol will kill as many bacteria as 20 minutes of scrubbing with soap and water.

Magical Thinking

Schizophrenia means "split from reality" and as a mental disease, it is one of the most severe and widespread.

Studying Groups

Dr. Stanley L. Gochman, Rutgers University psychologist, is studying groups of children with the disease in hopes of finding out how it can be diagnosed earliest, and treated.

One symptom he finds is that of magical thinking. The schizophrenic child may think, for instance, "If I clap my hands, another atomic explosion will take place."

Early results of his study suggest that psychotherapy may be effective in severe mental illness such as schizophrenia, although this technique is largely used in less severe problems, notably neuroses.

Curfew Set In Potter Town

AUSTIN, Pa. (AP)—A general rise in youth problems prompted a return Wednesday night to a p.m. curfew for persons 16 years old and under in this Potter County community.

Borough officials did not cite specific problems in explaining why the curfew was being reinstated. Austin at one time had a curfew, but it had been lifted.

Increased Spending

MEXICO CITY (AP)—The government spent $30.8 million on construction of toll roads and bridges last year, double the 1960 figure.

Leo Schneider, about 62, an independent dealer, said the robber escaped with a black leather pouch containing the gems.

Jewelry Salesman Is Held Up

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—A New York jewelry salesman told police yesterday he was held up and robbed of about $40,000 worth of unmounted diamonds in the elevator of a downtown building.

Castro Red Not Olive Green

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent

When Fidel Castro was reported dead in 1956 he was traced to his mountain hideout in Cuba. To hear Castro tell it then, he was against all odds. His revolution was "olive green." A year after it succeeded, it became clear Castro was as Red as a ripe radish.

Today another revolution, once reported dead, says he is a democrat fighting for human rights. But if this man's revolution succeeds and he happens to turn out to be the Castro of the Middle East, the Western world will suffer another blow.

Mother, Children Escape Reds

BAD HERSFELD, Germany (AP)—A mother and her six children, ranging in ages from 2 to 18 years, escaped from East Germany in broad daylight, police said Tuesday.

The family escaped Sunday and was not spotted by Communist border guards. The father remained in East Germany.

New Governor

THE HAGUE, Netherlands (AP)—Dr. Nicolaas Debrat, 60, was appointed yesterday as governor of the Dutch Antilles.

Debrat was born at Bonaire, in the West Indies in May 1900.

Will he be all right, doctor? Please, doctor. He'll be all right. Won't he? I know the child. I didn't mean it. I was late for the train. I forgot school started. Sometimes you have to hurry. What do you want, officer? I didn't mean it. Where are you taking me? Please. No, doctor. No!

DRIVERS KILL AND CRIPPLE MORE CHILDREN THAN ANY DISEASE!

Yes, careless drivers kill more children than pneumonia, cancer, polio, congenital malformation, or any other cause. Drivers kill and cripple more children than any major disease.

You've helped fight cancer, polio, other dreadful diseases. Now recognize the giant killer—traffic accidents! Fight it. Write your local enforcement officials. Say

"I support strict law enforcement"

Let them know you are behind their efforts to protect your children. For wherever traffic laws are strictly obeyed and enforced, deaths go down! Your community can be another to prove it!

Tricks To Carry Geraniums Over

By George Abraham

GERANIUMS: With geraniums selling for 70 cents or more each spring, gardeners are determined to save money by carrying their geraniums over each year. What's the best way to keep geraniums?

There are several tricks you can use, and I'll mention a few.

(1) Digging up plants and hanging them from roots in a cool, damp cellar. Some cellars are too dry for this, but you can get around it by encasing the plants in plastic bags (with a few air holes) in which some peat or moist sphagnum are kept. It takes just a little moisture to keep the plants alive during winter.

(2) Cut your potted plants back about one-third and store them in a bright cellar window, or sun-room where the temperature is 50 to 55 degs. These take only a bit of water during winter. Just enough to keep the soil slightly damp.

When February rolls around, you trim back both tops and roots, soak the plants in a bucket of water for a few minutes and pot them up in a mixture of one-third sand, one-third peat and one-third loam.

During winter storage leaves will drop off and plants will have a dried, yellowish appearance, but when you pot them up and bring into full sun, the leaves will be nice and green and you'll have husky plants by Memorial Day.

(3) Another trick is to take cuttings from your old plants now. Cut tips from your plants (make them about 4 inches long) and remove lower leaves. Plant these in a box of sterilized sand (pour boiling water over it and allow to cool). Shade cuttings from direct sun, and keep the sand moist (not sopping wet).

Some gardeners have good luck using plain tap water (with a piece of charcoal added) for rooting. Rooting takes 2 to 3 weeks, after which you can pot each cutting in the one-third, one-third peat and one-third loam mixture, after it has been baked in an oven for 1/2 hour at 250 degs. to kill off harmful soil organisms.

The "mother" plants from which you take cuttings can be potted up and grown in a sunny, cool window for winter blooming. I used to think it was quite a strain on a plant to bloom all summer and ask it to bloom all winter, but with proper feeding, watering and lighting, it doesn't seem to make much difference with geraniums.

CATFACED TOMATOES: What causes tomato fruits to develop large ugly bumps on the blossom ends? This is known as "catface". It does not harm the canning or "juice" quality of tomatoes, although it is unsightly.

Catfacing is usually caused by cool weather during blossoming, causing distortion of flower parts. As growth occurs, the fruits have those puckered, irregular swollen protuberances at the blossom end.

CONTROL: None, except to grow 2 or 3 different varieties, since certain varieties are especially susceptible to catfacing.

MUSHROOMS: This is the time of year toadstools and mushrooms often pop up in your lawn or garden and you may wonder if they are edible or poisonous. Mushrooms appear in May, summer and fall, the latter being the season of greatest abundance. How can you tell an edible mushroom?

There's no safe test. One test is to peel the mushroom and hold a silver coin or spoon against the flesh. This test is not reliable.

The theory is that if you can peel a mushroom it's edible. Don't depend on this because, "The Destroying Angel", most deadly mushroom known, can be peeled. And as far as blackening silver, it means nothing.

I'd never tell anyone how to differentiate between good and bad mushrooms because I don't know how. Usually, the Destroying Angel is a rather tall mushroom growing under or near trees, is white underneath (called gills) and has a ring (veil) hanging on the stem. Look for a swollen (bulbous) stem base growing out of a sheath. Common edible mushrooms are rather squat, grows in open pastures, is pink underneath, but soon turns black. It has a ring on the stem, but the stem is not swollen. Many die each year from eating poisonous mushrooms. Unless you know they are edible, your best bet is to leave wild forms of mushrooms alone.

PHILODENDRON: What causes brown spots along edges of leaves of philodendrons? First, look for poor drainage. If roots are waterlogged due to poor drainage, repot the plant, using a mixture containing one-third sand, one-third peat and one-third loam. Soils lacking organic matter dry out quickly and you're apt to get yellowed leaves, as well as a browning along the margins. Excessive amounts of dry fertilizer will also cause spotting of foliage.

BASIL VINEGAR: Want to make distilled vinegar look pretty? Add 2 or 3 springs of the purple-leaved basil you or neighbor might have growing in the backyard. The basil imparts a pretty wine-color to the vinegar. The bottles can be left on a window sill since the liquid is really striking.

The ornamental basil can also be used in cooking, and makes ideal vase arrangements indoors. A few sprigs in a vase will scent up your whole house with a healthy basil aroma.

If you didn't grow any ornamental basil this year, better order some seed next spring and grow a few plants outdoors.

HELIOTROPE: Can you dig up an heliotrope from the garden and grow it indoors? It makes a fairly good pot plant if you cut it back about one-third and grow it in a cool, sunny window.

If you're fond of heliotrope as a bedding plant outdoors, start new plants from cuttings, or seed. Don't forget about your Patience plants. They're willing subjects indoors and are easy to start from seed or cuttings.

Question Box

QUESTION OF THE WEEK: F. R. of Stroudsburg — "I have a tree hydrangea growing in our lawn and it is full of flowers. Should we cut these flowers off in fall or should we leave them on? When is the best time to prune the plant?"

You have the popular Pee Gee, a tall tree-like shrub growing 6 feet or more in height. Flowers are cone-shaped and white at first, then turning pink and later to a coppery bronze. They can be used as cut flowers, lasting for weeks indoors. Many use these flowers for dried arrangements, spraying them with different colored paints. Cut the flowers off in late fall, as soon as they start becoming unsightly.

The Pee Gee hydrangea flowers on the current season's growth, which means you can prune the bush in spring. If you want to keep the hydrangea down instead of "tree-form" prune it back to within 18 inches of the ground each spring. This sends out new shoots on which mammoth clusters of blooms will appear in fall or early summer.

If you don't bother to trim the Pee Gee at all, nothing serious will happen. You simply will get a large bush covered with hundreds of small cone-shaped flowers.

A. S. of E. Stroudsburg — "Please tell me how to store squash and pumpkins so they will keep longer? Ours always rot before Christmas."

Remember, only the winter types of squash and pumpkins are stored. These include Hubbard, Butternut, Buttercup, Acorn, and the various pumpkins. High quality in winter squashes and pumpkins is usually associated with maturity, which means you shouldn't harvest until they are fully ripe, but before they are frosted.

Matured fruits have a rather hard shell and usually the color darkens. On many varieties, the spot where the fruit lays on the ground will change from a creamy yellow to orange yellow. Both pumpkins and squash should be cut from the vine with a portion of the stem attached to the fruit. To cure, leave them in the garden in small piles for a week or so. After that, store in a dry place where temperature runs between 50 to 60 degs.

They should keep in good condition from four to six months. Check them each month and discard any which have decayed. Avoid bruising and scratching the pumpkins, squash or gourds.

One Killed In Accident

WILKES-BARRE, Pa. (AP)—One man is dead and another is in critical condition after their automobile went out of control on the highway between Folstown and Lake Nuangola Tuesday night, careened 30 feet down an embankment and crashed into an oak tree stump.

Dead is Frederick Lloyd, 37, of Nuangola, formerly of Newark, N. J.

Critical at Nanticoke State General Hospital is William L. Jones, 31, also of Nuangola, a neighbor of Lloyd's.

Although the accident happened at 11:20 p. m. Tuesday, it was not discovered until 6 a. m. today, a Nuangola resident, Mrs. Phillip Mayewski, who was walking down the highway, noticed the wrecked car.

An ambulance crew discovered Lloyd dead and Jones pinned in the wreckage. He was unconscious. The ambulance crew was unable to remove Jones from the machine and was forced to work more than an hour with hack saws and chisels to free the injured man.

Close Speed Bowl

THE FAMOUS speed bowl at the Nazareth Fairgrounds will be closed this Sunday to all race events as the management pushes ahead renovation projects in preparation for day-time speed shows scheduled to resume on Sunday, Sept. 23, starting at 2 p. m.

The Nazareth track, a mirror smooth one-half mile calcium-clay oval, is regarded by the drivers as the fastest of its kind in the East.

She has also performed in the East and sang concerts around Kansas City, including Fort Hays, Kansas, State College, where she participated in the singing of "The Creation" at the Hays Festival.

Miss Madden is a lyric-coloratura soprano and brings into the scope of her artistry not only great classical traditions, but also the lighter and well-loved operettas and ballads.

The music committee of the East Stroudsburg Methodist Church, of which Mrs. H. B. George is the chairman, is sponsoring the program. Robert C. Currier, minister of music, will accompany Miss Madden.

U. S. To Get Jones Property

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—A tract of 264 acres of land which the late W. Alton Jones acquired some years ago expecting to locate near his old friend Dwight Eisenhower will be donated to the federal government.

A joint announcement by government and private authorities Wednesday said the property would be turned over formally at a ceremony in Gettysburg later, with Mrs. Jones and Secretary of Interior Stewart Udall as principals.

The property adjoins the extensive farm of the former President near this historic battlefield community. The government will include it in the Gettysburg National Military Park, which embraces much of the area over which the armies of the North and South waged a major battle of the Civil War. Jones acquired the land for $100,000.

Jones, who was executive committee chairman of Cities Service, met an untimely death along with all other passengers aboard a jetliner which crashed taking off from Idlewild Airport in New York last March 1.

At the time, Jones was en route to California to join Eisenhower on a fishing trip.

Test flight of a helicopter equipped with an all-glass-fibre rotor blade appears to be more durable than the metal type.
